

SCHOOL FUNDING

Secular humanists are arguing that Judaeo-Christian Schools should be denied government funding if they do not accept students or employ teachers claiming a gender other than ‘male’ and ‘female’.

ARGUMENT

This proposition does not punish schools, it punishes individual households. These households pay tax, so why should they be punished?

STRATEGIES

Should a secular-humanist dominated government threaten to pass legislation to withdraw funding from schools that do not accept sexual deviants, parents of households connected with such schools should threaten to not pay tax.

If legislation is passed denying Christian Schools funding, parental households should not pay tax on all or a portion of their income.

There are ways that school fees can be considered legitimate business expenses, and legitimate deductions from income.

NB These strategies will not work unless a significant number of households adopt them – hence the importance of a significant number of households signing up for membership in the Alliance and acting in consort.

ACTION

The Alliance needs to lobby Christian School communities to canvas support for a tax withholding strategy.
